

What is micro-resistance spot welding?

In an automotive battery pack, many Li-ion cells are connected to meet the energy and power requirement. The micro-resistance spot welding (micro-RSW) process is one of the commonly used joining techniques for the development of cylindrical cell-based battery packs, especially for low to medium volume applications.

Can micro resistance spot welding be used for lithium-ion battery applications?

Conclusions In this work, micro resistance spot welding was carried out on electrically conductive thin sheets of Ni 201 to Al 3003 for lithium-ion battery applications. Taguchi design of experiments was used to predict the optimum weld parameters.

Why is spot welding of CuZn37 difficult?

As already discussed in Section 3, spot welding of CuZn37 generates voids inside the weld nugget and, therefore, higher electrical contact resistances as well as lowest ultimate tensile forces were measured. A possible stray current might pose another difficulty for further weld spots, when some weld spots are already made in close vicinity.

The outstanding features of the energy storage spot projection welding machine are short discharge time and large instantaneous current, so the thermal effects such as deformation and discoloration after welding are minimal. The low-power energy storage welding machine is suitable for welding precision parts, and the high-power energy storage ...

In this project I designed and built a prototype of USB-C powered capacitive discharge spot welder. It can be used to weld nickel strips to battery packs. This allows re-building battery packs for various devices, especially ones that are no longer maintained by the manufacturers. This spot welder, unlike many available DIY projects, doesn't need a ...

I plan to implement an energy based pulse control instead of a simple timer. i will try to see how that works with one single pulse, maybe that eliminates the need of a cleaning pulse. Constant energy delivered to the weld spot should result in more consistent welds.
