

Does Norway have a battery market?

Today Norway has not one, but two huge battery markets. "There are two market drivers for batteries: EVs and stationary energy storage. Energy storage is coming on strong now. It's the key to turning intermittent wind and solar into a stable energy source," explains Pål Runde, Head of Battery Norway.

How can Norway become a leader in sustainable batteries?

Investing in research, local manufacturing and secure access to materials is needed to solidify Norway's position as a leader in sustainable batteries. Battery technology is essential to meet Europe and Norway's zero emission targets by 2050, helping to reduce carbon emissions in the energy and transport sectors across the continent.

What is Norway's battery strategy?

The battery strategy is formulated as ten measures that will position Norway in the development of the battery industry in the coming years.

Is Norway a good place to recycle batteries?

Norway, with its strong expertise in processing industry, has a great opportunity to take a leading role within recycling of batteries and developing new and more efficient processes for recycling of all battery materials. - Today, graphite is not recycled, and ends up as CO₂-emissions.

Is Norway a good place to buy EV batteries?

An early adopter of electric transport, Norway continues to capture EV battery headlines. Electric cars now account for 79 per cent of new cars sold in Norway, and the MS Medstraum was recently launched as the world's first electric fast ferry. In a global report on lithium-ion batteries, Norway ranked first in sustainability.

Is Norway a battery region?

As a battery region, the Nordics have become a notable actor in the broader European battery market. They have also joined forces on global projects, such as the export of energy storage systems to Egypt and Lebanon. "The rest of the world understands that Norway is an important player in all things battery.
