Add seating: If your storage box is large enough, consider adding a cushion to the top to turn it into a seating option. This is a great way to maximize your outdoor space. Label it: Use a label maker or outdoor-safe marker to label your storage box with its contents. This will make it easier to find what you need and keep everything organized.

2 &#183; Once the dimensions are decided and you've measured up, build the frame to the height you want, making an allowance for the seat and any cushions you plan to add. To build the frame, start by cutting your studs to size. The studs are the vertical pieces, so make sure that you deduct the thickness of the (horizontal) wall plates.
